

A Faint Sound

First warm day of February working a cold garden

A faint, low honking, unmistakable I look up
search the blue sky
behind bare trees

There
a line
a vee
flying north

A thousand miles to go
but the journey started to plentiful food

in the arctic summer

More
sandhill cranes